The evolution of GP consulting during the pandemic; survival in the face of environmental pressures.

Due to Covid-19, remote consulting became the norm and clinicians evolved skills to manage.

How has that changed you as a clinician, impacted primary care and new ways of working as we learn to live with Covid-19?

This interactive, experiential workshop will allow you to reflect on how you have coped with remote consulting. It will use coaching techniques to support your thinking about how you and your team move forward in the new landscape.

We will explore the results of a survey of VoT GPs on their experiences of remote consulting and link the findings to personal experiences.

Come to this workshop ready to reflect, interact with colleagues and have your thinking stretched and stimulated.
